Preparations for the Winter Races.

CONDITION OF THE TRACK,

The Jury Finds Garrett Guilty as Charged—Other Interesting Items.

The near approach of the opening of the winter race meeting and the presence of a number of the horses that will participate in the various events, drew a large number of people in the direction of the track yesterday, and the Agricultural park presented a pleasing picture of unusual animation in the early morning. During the late heavy rains the horses were obliged to be kept housed in their stalls, and naturally became somewhat stiffened; but yesterday's warm sunshine was taken advantage of, and trainers, jockeys and stableboys were hard at work getting their equine charges in condition for the coming week's work. Among the horses already housed at the track are J. R. Ross's Oro, Sir Ladd and Kitty Van, all of whom show a clean bill of health, and were sent along at a medium pace.

Matt Storm's Jubilee, Kildare, Forrester and Fannie F. were all out yesterday, and Kildare especially won the commendation of the critics who saw him in motion. D. F. Abel's Rondo, a little chestnut horse by Vanderbilt Duchy, has the reputation of being a sprinter of more than ordinary speed, and his small but well-muscled frame and limbs indicate that he will be a hard one to beat at his distance, half a mile. Tom Hazlit's string comprises Louise M. and Black Pilot, both of whom did good work yesterday morning. Kelly and Samuels as usual are well represented by Welcome and Ed McGinnis, both of whom are too well known to need special mention, beyond the fact that they are reported "fit." Several other strings will be on the ground today, and it is much to the credit of the management that there will be more running horses at the track during the coming meeting than have been stabled there at any one time in the past. Of the trotters Bayliss' string of four demanded the most attention yesterday. It includes the San Diego stallion, Atto Rex, the son of Attorney, whose record of 2:21¾ his trainer is confident of being able to eclipse in the near future. Bob Mason, by Echo—Belle Mason, Larco, by Richmond, and another Richmond three-year-old, as yet unnamed, complete the list.

In addition to the horses entered in the winter races, is a string of fourteen promising youngsters belonging to L. J. Rose, most of which are entered in stake races for the coming year, 1890. Among these are a full sister to Floodtide, a full sister to Faustine, and several other yearlings and two-year-olds by Flood, Wild Idler and Shannon, out of imported thoroughbred mares.

The track yesterday was in fair condition considering the unusual amount of rain which has fallen during the past week, and given two more days such as was yesterday, will be in excellent trim after the harrow has been run over it. The roads and approaches to the Agricultural park are unfortunately in a very heavy condition and it will be several days before the mud dries out sufficiently to cake and harden. Still, with the exception of Wesley avenue, which is perhaps the worst part of the road, the probabilities are that a couple of warm days will show a marked improvement in the condition of the driveways.

GUILTY GARRETT.

A Tender Hearted Jury Recommends Him to Mercy.

When 10 a. m. yesterday marked its advent on the dials of the clocks, the Garrett jury was still hard at work trying to get the eleven foolish ones to come over to the one wise man. So they had stood from the second ballot. On the first informal ballot, on Saturday evening, there were ten votes that read that ominous word "guilty" and two that read "not guilty." Before the second ballot was cast the ten had converted one of the two who thought Garrett a saint. This was an old gentleman named Z. Eldridge. He had some qualms of conscience, or some mental misgivings which a little reasoning dispelled. They stood eleven to one all the time until about noon yesterday. The Court sat at about 10 o'clock, and learning that there was no verdict yet, went to church, or some other proper place.

Mr. M. Norton was the one man who refused to vote for the conviction of Garrett. He was convinced that the defendant had done all the acts alleged to have been done by him. He was furthermore convinced that Malia Edgcomb is the natural daughter of F. M. Garrett, the defendant, but he thought the testimony before the jury failed to show that Garrett, at the time he is charged with having illicit intercourse with the girl, knew or believed her to be his daughter. It took until 1 o'clock to show Mr. Norton from the evidence that he was wrong on that point. He seems to have acted with pure conscientiousness in the matter, and to have been actuated by praiseworthy motives. At this hour the other eleven had succeeded in demonstrating to Mr. Norton that the point in question had been reasonably shown. Then he came in and voted for a verdict. It took until about 4 o'clock to get the Court, the attorneys and the defendant into court, and when this was done the jury was duly polled and the foreman, W. W. Jones, read the verdict, which was guilty, recommending the prisoner to the mercy of the Court. This clause speaks volumes for the tender hearts of these twelve men. If Garrett is guilty as charged in the indictment he is worthy of a dozen deaths, and there are no mitigating circumstances in his favor. The charge is that when Malia Garrett's mother was a young girl, a domestic in Garrett's family near New Orleans, he seduced her, and as a result Malia was born. When this child was not yet in her teens, her natural but unnatural father is alleged to have ruined her; to have maintained this beastly intercourse with her for seven years; to have twice caused her to become pregnant, and once to have nearly killed her in doing away with what would have been evidence of his double crime. On the second occasion he is alleged to have formed a conspiracy to put James Edgcomb, now the husband of his daughter in his place. These crimes have extended over a period of eighteen years, during which time Garrett has passed from youth to middle age. If he is guilty, as the jury say he is, and as 99 out of every 100 persons in Los Angeles believe him to be, he is not a subject for light punishment, and the jury with the best intentions in the world, no doubt, are very much mistaken in their recommendation.

Garrett is an ingrate too. His counsel, W. T. Williams and Major Horace Bell, have stuck to his case with a persistence worthy of a better cause. They have done all that could be done on his behalf; they cannot have received much for it. They have fought his battle in the face of much popular odium. Garrett ought to be grateful to them. He is not. As he went from the court room yesterday afternoon he is reported to have said to the officer: "If it had not been for them two——fools, I would not be in this fix now." He was referring to his attorneys.

Garrett will appear in court today, when time for passing sentence will be fixed. There will be no room for any motion for a new trial, nor need Judge Shaw fear a reversal in a higher court. He let the defense have pretty nearly all they asked for that bore at all on their case. Garrett is tried for all time.

Probably no case has ever been tried in this county which has created more interest than this. In spite of the fact that it was Sunday, the court was filled with people anxious to hear the result of the trial. There is hardly a man who has heard Malia tell her story and Garrett tell his, who is not fully persuaded that the old man is guilty.

CHURCH NOTES.

What the Ministers Talked About Yesterday.

Everybody went to church yesterday, and in consequence the houses of worship were well filled and there were few vacant seats. In quite a number of instances sermons appropriate to the Christmas holidays were delivered. At the Fort-street M. E. church there was a Christmas service, and Rev. Dr. Cantine delivered an excellent sermon.

At the Immanuel church yesterday Dr. J. W. Chichester preached a most interesting and thoughtful discourse on the expiry of the year. He spoke very hopefully of the coming year, and anticipated that the new church his congregation so greatly needed would be got under way. He said that the merit of his flock would be the greater if in times like these, when business was depressed and money scarce, they should succeed in overcoming these disadvantages and erect their new temple. It would have been no task at all to have built a $50,000 church three years ago; but to do so now would be a triumph worthy of the highest admiration.

At the Church of the Unity Rev. Thomas Van Ness, of Denver, talked of "The Ideal Commonwealth or the Weakness of Christian Socialism and Nationalism."

Rev. H. M. Du Bose took for his subjects yesterday at the Tirnity M. E. church "Commended to God" and "Life and Death."

"No Room in the Sun" and "Presents for the Home Folks" were the subjects of Rev. J. H. Phillips at the East Los Angeles Congregational church.

Rev. Robt. G. Hutchins preached on "The Things Which are Behind and the Things Which are Before" at the morning service of the First Congregational church, and in the evening he delivered an address for the close of the year.

At the East Los Angeles Baptist church Rev. W. W. Tucker preached on "The Flood, What Shall we Do in the Swelling of Jordan."

Rev. W. A. Knighten's subjects yesterday at the Grace M. E. church were "A Minister's New Year Gift" and "Good Cheer."

Fell From a Roof.

W. Mendoza, a boy about 16 years of age, while playing with a companion at his father's residence near the Boyle Heights baseball grounds, yesterday afternoon, climbed upon the roof of the house. Owing to the recent rains, the shingles were slippery, and the boy missed his footing and fell from the roof of the dwelling to that of a low shed adjoining. Unfortunately, however, the shed was poorly constructed and unable to stand the strain of the lad's weight; the roof gave way, precipitating him to the ground below. Being unable to rise unassisted, he screamed for help, and it was found that he had fractured his left leg below the knee. Councilman R. E. Wirsching, at the request of the lad's parents, telephoned from his residence for the patrol wagon, and in it the injured boy was conveyed to the Police Station for medical treatment. Dr. Wing set the fractured bone, and shortly after the operation the boy was removed to his home, there being no place for patients at the Police Station.

Alleged Conspiracy.

Dominick O'Connor, a prisoner confined in the upper tank of the County Jail, informed a HERALD reporter on Friday evening that he was the victim of a conspiracy. He was one of the principal witnesses in the Johnson case last week, and on leaving this city after the examination walked through San Fernando en route to Santa Barbara to find work. While at Newhall he was arrested by a Constable who told him that Constable Kearns wanted him, and the latter officer telegraphed to Constable Johnson to know his pleasure regarding him. He said he was taken before Justice Williams and the officer perjured himself in swearing that his prisoner was a vagrant, whereupon O'Connor was committed for 60 days. He states that Kearns abused him for testifying against Johnson and for this reason caused his arrest and incarceration.

A High Tea.

Christmas afternoon a High Tea was given at No. 50 South Olive street by the Misses Lillian Whelpley, Rose Harben, Belle Thomas and Nellie Kennedy. The house was decorated with smilax and choice flowers. Among those present were Messrs. Davidson, King, Cox, Wallace and Whelpley. The affair was an unusually pleasant one.

COMING AROUND.

Another Day of Hard Work for the Railroads.

MOST LINES OPEN UP TOMORROW

Mail From the East and North Today—Rapid Work on the Bridges—A Few Trains.

Yesterday was probably the last day of the blockade. Mail, express and passengers will arrive in the city today from all directions, and by the middle or end of this week the roads will be in condition to run nearly all of their trains on schedule time—at least that is what they claim. It is of course possible that the authorities may be a little over-sanguine, but as the exact extent of the damages are now known a better judgment can be made as to when repairs can be completed.

The Southern Pacific authorities announce that by tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock they will have their line open from the Arcade depot through to the East. The bridge at Monte is now all right, so that trains can cross. Between Monte and this city the construction trains are at work on the various washouts, and they will have them all in shape by this morning. There is one place near Shorb's where there is a cut under the track 125 feet wide and forty deep where a small river created for the occasion plowed out a channel for itself. At Aurant there is a cut thirty feet deep and 100 wide. These have both been filled in.

Passengers and mail were carried to El Monte yesterday and brought in from there to the city in wagons. This mail is only local. The overland mail from the East comes by the Santa Fe and was caught at Barstow. It was all sent back to Albuquerque and will arrive over the Southern Pacific some time to-day.

A number of people who were determined to get out of town and start east yesterday took wagons at 3:15 in the afternoon and went to El Monte. There they took the Southern Pacific train for Yuma and the East. There were four wagon loads of them, about fifteen passengers in all. A quantity of local mail was also sent out this way. From here to Monte is thirteen miles and the roads are now in a passable condition.

Two pile drivers are at work on the upper Southern Pacific bridge over the Los Angeles river and the work of repairing it will probably be completed by this evening. The pile drivers will then be put to work on the lower bridge which forms the eastern connection. In the meantime a gang of men has been at work on the lower bridge, cribbing it up for temporary use. Ties have been piled up, log-cabin fashion, in rectangular form, making temporary piers on which cross timbers can be placed. Nine o'clock this morning is the time set when the first train can cross this structure.

The Southern Pacific authorities declare that the northern division will be open for traffic on Wednesday. Large gangs of men and a number of carloads of implements have been sent down from the north. It is of course a matter of absolute necessity to the company to get this division of the road open at the earliest possible moment and their utmost endeavors will be put forth to accomplish the work of repair. Those who have seen the extent of the injuries declare that they are of such a nature that no amount of energy can overcome them within a week or ten days. Mail and passengers are now coming down from the north by steamer.

The Long Beach division of the Southern Pacific was opened yesterday Nothing has been done as yet on the Santa Ana division, but work will begin this morning.

A great deal of improvement was effected yesterday in the condition of the Santa Fe Company's lines, although no new trains were put on. A train ran from San Bernardino to South Pasadena and back again, but no other attempt was made to establish a connection with this city. The work on the bridge over the Los Angeles river progresses but slowly owing to the fact that the current of the river is very strong at that point. It is not likely that this connection can be established for a couple of days yet. As the damages on the Orange division of the line are not very considerable, it will be possible to run trains from San Bernardino into this city by that route. The work on the Ballona division bridge was hindered a little yesterday by the breaking of the pile driver.

It is believed that a train will get through from San Diego today, and that that division of the system will then be permanently open. The burrowers in the Cajon pass do not see light yet, and the overland trains will probably not get through for several days more.

In a general way it may be stated that mail, express and passenger traffic will be resumed in all directions by Tuesday night, but that one branch of the Southern Pacific and one of the Santa Fe are likely to be out of use for nearly a week longer.

"Romantic Love and Personal Beauty."

[McMillan & Co., London and New York, 1887.]

Some months ago there appeared in the New York Nation a series of papers on California by Henry T. Finck, which attracted a good deal of attention. Many of them were copied in part or wholly into the various journals of the State. Los Angeles came in for a good slice of these complimentary letters. The local papers copied much of what was said about this section. So intelligent, and so warmly appreciative were the terms in which the Angelic City and its surroundings were mentioned, that no doubt those who live here will be glad to know something more about the gifted writer from whose pen so much graceful praise flowed about the semi-tropics.

Mr. Finck has a brother-in-law at Anaheim in the person of Mr. Max Nebelung, and it was from him that the correspondent of the Nation gleaned a great deal of the information he worked into his letters. Mr. Finck was at Anaheim with his brother-in-law for many days. He is a regular member of the staff of the New York Evening Post, doing the musical work on that critical journal. He is a thoroughly educated musician and an enthusiast in the art. He spent all last summer in Portland, Oregon, where he has a brother, and has since gone to Japan. As he journeys thus leisurely around the world he is engaged in writing a very interesting history of music. So that newspaper articles, and such ephemeral work is not all, nor the best he is capable of doing. Nor is this work on music which he is now writing his first attempt in the line of permanent authorship. Some two years ago the well known publishing firm of London and New York, McMillan & Co., issued from their press a volume of nearly 600 pages, small 8vo size, which has taken its place high up in the ranks of permanent literature. The title is "Romantic Love and Personal Beauty." While the book is interesting in the extreme, there is nothing of the light emotional character within its pages. It is really a treatise at once historical and scientific. There is no branch of life that is not analyzed for material for this book. Nor is there any epoch of time or race of men whose history is not sifted thoroughly from matter congate to the subject or illustrative of some of its phases. The lower animals as well as man, the birds of the forest and the beasts of the plain are made subservient to the author's purposes.

These purposes are to show that romantic love lies at the bottom of all personal beauty, that the love of one male and one female is the well-spring from which flows all the development of races, the natural selection from which comes improvement in species as well as the highest happiness of the human race. Love in all its phases, maternal, paternal, filial, fraternal, sexual and even friendship are analyzed with a closeness that proves Mr. Finck to be possessed of both the historical and the scientific turn of mind. Coleridge's opening verse in "Genevieve" is the keynote to this charming volume:

> All thoughts, all passions, all delights;
> Whatever stirs the mortal frame—
> All are but ministers of love
> And feed its sacred flame.

And all the passions that arise from and flow out of the overmastering one of love are as perfectly analyzed as the main head of the subject of the book.

The literature of all nations is ransacked for matter illustrative of love and its cognate emotions. The poets of Greece and Rome seem to be as familiar to the author as those of Germany, England and America. The dicta of Aristotle are quoted with the same smooth facility as the opinions of Herbert Spencer or Sir Edwin Arnold.

Our author likens "Romantic Love" to music. Each note of music is accompanied by a number of what are called "overtones." These are so fine that they are lost to most ears in the "fundamental" tone. Exceptionally sharp ears hear each of them as an accompaniment to this tone, but to the common ears they merely give quality to the sound. They make the peculiar timbre of the individual note and make it merely possible for ordinary ears to tell whether the note comes from a violin, a flute, a piano, or a human voice, and still more delicately to ears better attuned they enable the listener to distinguish the notes of one voice from those of another, or of one violin from those of another. But for these "undertones" all voices and all instruments would sound alike and the piano would give forth the same sort of note as the violin.

Love is the "fundamental" tone, and around it are grouped the "undertones." One is "individual preference." This is a concomitant of "Romantic Love." A savage chief ignorant of love will swap one woman for another as he will swap a horse or a weapon, if he thinks he is getting the best of the bargain. Romantic love with stubborn pertinacity clings to the individual of its choice, although there are other women richer, fairer, more intelligent and in various ways superior. The attachment is to the person, the lover hardly knows why, and the accidental surroundings of the personality cut but more or less figure in the selection.

The next "undertone" is monopoly or exclusiveness. "As in a sun-glass all solar rays are concentrated into one burning focus, so are the lover's emotions on his beloved." Jealousy is a third "undertone." "This is the salt and pepper of love. A little is piquant, too much of it spoils the soup."

Coyness, a feminine "undertone," comes next, which by retarding the eager lover's conquest, augments and idealizes his passion. The modern artificial corruption of this quality inclines on one side towards prudery and on the other towards coquetry.

Gallantry, self-sacrifice, sympathy, pride of conquest, emotional hyperbole, mixed moods, and admiration of personal beauty follow, making in all eleven "undertones" to romantic love. Here are the separate parts of that compound emotion made of many sub-passions which men call love. Heine says:

> Angels call it heavenly joy,
> Infernal torture the devils say;
> And men? They call it—Love.

Mr. Finck takes up the history of love as it is found in the sacred books of the Hebrews, of the Aryans before them, and of the Egyptian literature that remains. Greece and Italy follow, where all the poets and philosophers are quoted in support of the theory of romantic love. The literature of the Middle Ages comes next and then that of all modern nations. After these branches come chapters on all imaginable subdivisions of the main subject. Genius in marriage and genius in love are among these, and are very interesting. The main idea is that genius is not very successful in either marriage or love. In some instances it is too successful and in direct opposition to the central idea of the book that monogamy is an essential element in romantic love. He is bound to admit that in rare cases men have been found to love two women at the same time, and that real affection of the sexual quality existed for both these women. Mr. Finck is forced to admit this from the biographies of such men as Goethe, Burns, Heine, Ovid and others. At the end of the chapter devoted to this branch of the subject the author says: "So that, after all, it seems possible to love two at the same time; but it takes genius to do it." The italics are the author's own, and it must have been hard for him to admit it, for it is directly contrary to the theory he sets out with, and labors everywhere to prove.

Progressing with his subject, much space is spent on kissing, past, present and future, and the limpid sentences are as sweet as the osculatory process itself—or nearly so. He tells how to win love and how to cure love. He closes with an analysis of the human form divine, both male and female, and shows the genesis of personal beauty under the fostering smile of romantic love, following out the development theory by natural selection in hand and foot, in eye and figure in a most charming manner, with ripe learning and a playful imagination that make the book at once interesting and instructive in a very high degree. As one lays the dainty volume down, he wants to sing with Tennyson:

> Love took up lyre of life and smote on all the > chords with might,
> Smote the chord of Self, which trembling > passed in music out of sight.

East Side Notes.

There will be a watch-night social at the Congregational church Tuesday night.

Churches and Sunday schools were largely attended yesterday, notwithstanding that Christmas is past.

An immense crowd of sight-seers visited the East Side yesterday, and the cable company had full cars almost the entire day.

Mr. Chris Carter, of Long Beach, spent Sunday with Mr. Henry Whitman, on Kuhrts street. Mr. Carter goes to Pasadena this morning.

The Santa Fe had a large force of men at work all day on the breaks in the track along the river front and especially on the Pasadena bridge.

The Southern Pacific Company had its temporary bridges almost completed last night. To one unacquainted with railroad work there appeared to be nothing wanting except the rails.

A letter that arrived yesterday contains the information that quite a number of people of Clinton, Neb., were intending to start for Los Angeles on the day after Christmas, induced to come by representations of East Side friends. They will, in all probability, locate in East Los Angeles.

A Downey avenue resident had a fine overcoat, a reminder of the frozen East, which he wore in the rain and got soaked. As it was half an inch thick it took some time to dry, and yesterday he hung it on the line in the sun. Since that time the whereabouts of said overcoat are unknown, though he thinks some sight-seer from over the river carried it off as a relic of the flood.

Something for the New Year.

The world-renowned success of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and their continued popularity for over a third of a century as a stomachic, is scarcely more wonderful than the welcome that greets the annual appearance of Hostetter's Almanac. This valuable medical treatise is published by the Hostetter Company, Pittsburg, Pa., under their own immediate supervision, employing 60 hands in that department. They are running about 11 months in the year on this work, and the issue of same for 1890 will not be less than ten millions, printed in the English, German, French, Welsh, Norwegian, Swedish, Holland, Bohemian and Spanish languages. Refer to a copy of it for valuable and interesting reading concerning health, and numerous testimonials to the efficacy of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, amusement, varied information, astronomical calculations and chronological items, etc., which can be depended on for correctness. The Almanac for 1890 can be obtained free of cost from druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the country.

Cancer of the Nose.

In 1875 a sore appeared on my nose, and grew rapidly. As my father had cancer, and my husband died of it, I became alarmed, and consulted my physician. His treatment did no good, and the sore grew larger and worse in every way, until I had concluded that I was to die from its effects. I was persuaded to take S. S. S., and a few bottles cured me. This was after all the doctors and other medicines had failed. I have had no return of the cancer.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE SALE.

Order of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale.

Under and by virtue of an order of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale, issued out of the Superior Court of the County of Los Angeles, State of California, on the 5th day of December, A.D. 1889, in the above entitled action, wherein John Wolfskill, the above named plaintiff, obtained a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale against Thomas A. Lewis, defendant, on the 5th day of December, A. D. 1889, for the sum of $4989.10, in lawful money of the United States, which said decree was on the 5th day of December, A. D. 1889, recorded in judgment book 14 of said Court, at page 292; I am commanded to sell all those certain lots, pieces or parcel of land, situate, lying and being in the County of Los Angeles, State of California and bounded and described as follows:

Lots numbered 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, in block twenty (20) and lots numbered eight (8) and nine (9), in block numbered two (2) of the subdivision of the Rancho San Jose de Buenos Ayres, according to a map of said subdivision recorded in book 26, pages 19 et seq., Miscellaneous Records of Los Angeles county.

Lots forty (40) and forty-one (41), in block nineteen (19) of the subdivision of the Rancho San Jose de Buenos Ayres, according to a map of said subdivision recorded in book 26, pages 19 et seq., Miscellaneous Records of Los Angeles county.

Public notice is hereby given, that on Monday, the 20th day of January, A. D. 1890, at 12 o'clock m. of that day, in front of the Court House door of the County of Los Angeles, on Spring street, I will, in obedience to said order of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale, sell the above described property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy said judgment, with interest and costs, etc., to the highest and best bidder, for cash, lawful money of the United States.

Dated this 27th day of December, 1889.

GOSSIP ABOUT THE ACTORS.

Jarbeau at the Grand This Week—A Big Opera Company Next Week.

Al Hayman, who now has the Baldwin, California and the new theater at Portland, Oregon, has telegraphed that he is now negotiating for two other houses on the Pacific Coast.

Mary Anderson is reported to have so far recovered from her recent illness as to be making plans for the production of The Tempest, with Weedon Grossmith, of Pantomime Rehearsal fame, as "Caliban."

Miss Flora Batson, the colored vocalist, who gave a couple of concerts at the Los Angeles theater a short time since, will sing for the benefit of the Union-avenue M. E. church at the Fort-street M. E. church, on Wednesday evening. Prof. C. S. De Lano, Mrs. Ide, Mrs. Leslie Slombs and others will also take part.

Commencing January 6th Los Angeles people will have a chance to listen to seven operas given by the Emma Juch Opera Company. The operas to be given are Faust, Trovatore, Carmen, Maritana, Mignon, Bohemian Girl and Freischutz. There are 108 people in the company and an orchestra of thirty-two people is brought with the company. No doubt there will be a rush for seats.

The following incident is said to have happened during a performance of Faust in Dublin: "Satan" was conducting "Faust" through the trap-door which represented the gates of Hades. His Imperial Majesty got through all right—he was used to going below—but "Faust," who was stout, got only about half way in, and no squeezing would get him any further. Suddenly an Irishman in the gallery exclaimed "Thank Heaven—hell is full!"

A vaudeville artist applied to a Paris manager for an engagement to sing a couple of songs and give a character dance between the acts.

"It seems to me," said the manager, "that I have seen you on the stage, and your performance was wretched."

"You must have seen me when I was with a traveling troupe. I admit that my performance was miserable, but that was intentional on my part," replied the artist."

"What nonsense!"

"No nonsense at all. You see, the manager never paid me anything. When I sang and danced well the audience applauded, but I was starving. Then I purposely performed my part wretchedly so that the people were indignant and threw vegetables and even apples at me, and thus I got enough to eat. Oh, I knew what I was about. Il n'y a pas demouches pur moi!"—[Boston Advertiser.

The late Madame Rudersdorff was an excellent artist, and like most singers occasionally had her little caprices. At rehearsal, one day, she told Sir Michael Costa, the conductor, that she could not sing her song as it was composed, and insisted on having it transposed a note lower. "But, Madame," said Costa, "consider the inconvenience, especially to the wind instruments, and particularly as my men cannot be counted on to transpose at sight." Madame, however, was obdurate, and Costa, shrugging his shoulders, bowed in acquiescence. "Very well, gentlemen," said Sir Michael, turning to the bewildered orchestra, and closing his score, "tomorrow you will play it a note lower." The next day, however, just before Madame Rudersdoff came on to sing, Costa whispered to the musicians "In the original! No change." And so it was sung. At the close of the air, the singer turned to Costa and thanked him warmly. "I am charmed," she said. "Madame," replied the wily Costa, with a touch of pleasant irony, "we are also charmed. You sang it in the original key.—[Exchange, N. Y.

To-night at the Grand opera house Vernona Jarbeau opens a week's engagement in Starlight. Miss Vernona Jarbeau has been on the stage almost since childhood. Her first appearance was made at the age of sixteen, two months after graduating. Her first role was "Hebe" in Pinafore, with the Duff Opera Company, at the Standard theater in 1879. Miss Jarbeau has played in all branches of the theatrical business, but has been principally known from her connection with comic opera. She has been the prima donna of D'Oyle Carte, Duff and Max Maretzek opera companies. As yet she has never attempted grand opera, but will probably run foul of it some time. From burlesque to tragedy is quite a jump, but Miss Jarbeau has accomplished it successfully. She supported Mme. Modjeska for six weeks at the Fifth Avenue theater in New York, in nearly all of Modjeska's roles, Jarbeau being engaged to strengthen the cast. The season after that she played with John Stetson's great cast company. The last two seasons before her starring tour she was again prima donna of the Duff Opera Company.

Here is a story of Sothern which we reproduce in the manner he was in the habit of telling it himself:

"Mr. Toole and I were breakfasting with a party of friends in an inn at Greenwich. No sooner had the waiter left the room for an instant than I proposed that we remove the plate from the cloth and go under the table. This we did without loss of time, taking every article of silverware off the table including the spoons, and throwing open the window. After a while the door was opened and the waiter reappeared.

"Hullo!" he cried, seeing the company gone, "here's a rum go; I'm blest if they aren't run away with the silver. Here, Dick (to a waiter), the gentlemen 'as run away with the silver! 'Elp me find the guv'nor!"

With that he made a hasty exit, whereupon the party resumed their places, after shutting the window and replacing the dishes, the knives, the forks and the spoons. When the "guv'nor" appeared breathless and cursing, he found a party of gentlemen in full possession of his silverware, quietly discussing the fish.

"Eh, what!" said he, "everything secure? Why, James, you confounded rascal, what do you mean?"

"So 'elp me, guv'nor——"

"You're drunk, you idiot! Gentlemen, I beg your pardon; I will withdraw."—[Dramatic Mirror.

SAN FRANCISCO
—IN—DANGER.

So says Chief Scannell, and with his long and varied experience in matters pertaining to conflagrations, we naturally give him the benefit of the doubt. We, as tax-payers, property-owners and citizens, are deeply interested in this impending and sure-to-come danger. We hate to feel that when we leave our cosy homes in the morning that there is any such a thing as their being in ruins when we return. The cry is, more hose, more engines, more men that can be enlisted and paid to remain at the engine-houses of the fire department, which means more strength to aid in putting down this terrible conflagration when it does come. Now, strength is what everything has to have to do service in a greater or less degree. Man acquires this much-needed strength by various means. Exercise, plenty of fresh air, good food, eaten at regular intervals, and the use of the GREAT SIERRA KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE. A man may look ever so healthy and think himself in the best of conditions, and yet have diseased kidneys. Anatomical science treats that the kidneys are so poorly supplied with nerves of sensation that when disease first starts they can sound no alarm. For that reason it behooves us to be very watchful, and by the use of the never-failing remedy, THE GREAT SIERRA KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE, keep these important organs of existence in perfect health.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE county of Los Angeles, State of California.

D. R. Brearley, plaintiff, vs. Lizzie Baker, Thomas Kilpatrick and William Riley, defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the county of Los Angeles, State of California, and the complaint filed in said county of Los Angeles in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Lizzie Baker and Thomas Kilpatrick, defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the county of Los Angeles, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons, if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to foreclose the lien against lot 10, block 14, Pioneer Building Lots Association Tract, in the city of Los Angeles, county and State aforesaid, created by the assessment and warrant made by the Superintendent of Streets of said city for grading Sichel street, the amount of said assessment against said lot 10 being $102.36—for attorneys' fees and for costs of suit. Reference is had to complaint for particulars.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said plaintiff will cause your default to be entered, and apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Superior Court of the county of Los Angeles, State of California, this 25th day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine.

La Grippe on its Westward Way.

As the epidemic which has been so wide-spread and serious in Europe has already reached the East and is rapidly working its way to the Pacific Coast, everything in relation to it becomes of peculiar interest. Influenza or "La Grippe" has been long recognized by medical writers as one of the classes of disease to which zymotic is now applied. Although it closely resembles ordinary catarrh it presents certain points of difference from that disease. In addition to the ordinary symptoms of catarrh, there is a sudden, early and very striking debility and depression of spirits. This early debility is one of the most marked and characteristic signs of influenza. The mucous membranes (especially the pulmonary membrane) are much affected. The tongue is white and creamy, the sense of taste is lost, there is no appetite, the pulse is soft and weak, the skin, at first hot and dry, soon becomes moist, and the patient complains of pains and soreness in various parts of the body. These symptoms, which are given by Cullen, who designates the disease catarrhus e contagio, convey exactly the idea we have formed of the epidemic now raging in Europe and making its advent into this country. This is further demonstrated by the fact that the reports from Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg show that the influenza now prevalent is not of the mild form in which convalescence soon supervenes, but that it is of the more aggravated type which is frequently conjoined with bronchitis or pneumonia, and which is much more persistent and dangerous than the former. All the symptoms and indeed results of the more aggravated type have been realized in Europe in the present epidemic.

Another medical writer, who has given special study to this disease, tells us that influenza affords us an excellent (?) example of an epidemic disease—a whole community being often attacked in a few hours. This was illustrated in St. Petersburg a few days ago, when, although the affection was considered sporadic the day before, the report was telegraphed the next day that two-thirds of the entire population of that capital were suffering from it. It might be inferred from the suddenness with which influenza attacks whole communities that its origin or cause was connected with some particular condition of the atmosphere. This is probably the fact, but what that condition is is not positively known. Not unfrequently it follows upon a sudden thaw; sometimes it is preceded by a thick fog; and sometimes makes its appearance after a sudden change from heat to frost. One hypothesis refers the complaint to some change in the electrical state of the air, and one of the latest and most probable conjectures regarding its exciting cause is that of Schönbein, who refers it to an excess of ozone in the atmosphere. The microbe theory will also be held by some as lying at its root. Like cholera, influenza generally follows a westerly direction, or one from the southeast towards the northwest, and its course seems to be altogether independent of currents of air, as it frequently travels against the prevailing wind. So much for the symptoms and character of the disease which we shall probably not escape on this Coast in some form.

The books give a variety of formulas for the treatment of patients afflicted with influenza. The simplest and perhaps the best is to do nothing to the patient that will tend to depress his vital powers. The more these can be raised and strengthened the better. He should be kept in bed, gently purged, his skin lightly acted upon if dry, and if the cough be troublesome a mustard poultice applied to the chest and the administration of an expectorant mixture will prove of great service. In persons of weak or broken-down constitutions, ammonia, beef tea and wine and water must be given from the outset. The debility that often remains for a considerable period after convalescence is best met by preparations of iron and quinine. It is needless to say that the physician should be called in at once, whose treatment of the disease will vary with the condition, age, habits and constitution of the patient. But those who cannot readily get the doctor will not go astray to follow the treatment outlined above.

Whilst we have little doubt that the disease will make its appearance on this Coast, we do not believe that it will be attended with either the danger, the virulence or the wide-spread epidemicity it has had in Europe and may possibly have in the Eastern States. California, especially this section, possesses a climate of too mild a type for influenza to flourish in it. We may have a number, perhaps a large number of cases, but we doubt whether the persons attacked will suffer greatly or be placed in the same peril that has attended the epidemic elsewhere. In the meantime, however, it is well for all to guard themselves as much as possible against it. Careful regimen, regular habits, care in dress, and the avoiding of everything that will tend to depress the spirits or produce gloomy reaction, will prove an excellent armor against the disease, and soften and mitigate its virulency if it should be contracted.

IN SPITE of the fact that Los Angeles has lost by the cutting off of Orange county a large slice of territory, valued by the Assessor at about $10 000,000, we are still in assessed wealth the second county in the State. San Francisco of course comes first with a valuation of $291,700,433. Then follows Los Angeles with $84,376,319. Alameda holds third place, her assessment being $71,896,182. Santa Clara is next, with $53,000,000, and then comes San Joaquin with $38,000,000 of taxable property. Sacramento and Fresno are assessed at about the same figure, $34,000,000 each, and San Diego and Sonoma run neck and neck with $31,000,000 each. The rates of taxation in these rich counties ought to be comparatively light for the reason that county expenses should not increase with growth of population and wealth. But in spite of what ought to be we are confronted with the fact that San Francisco with her heavy tax roll pays a rate of $1.722 on each $100, Los Angeles, the next richest county, pays $1.50 on property inside cities and $1.80 outside, where the 30 cents road tax is added. Alameda, the next county in wealth, pays rates of $1.15 and $1 45. Santa Clara pays the same rates, and so does Santa Barbara, the former having an assessed value of much less than one-half of ours and the latter being less than one-fourth. Orange, with an assessment of less than $10,000,000, has a rate about the same as Alameda. Counties of small wealth like Colusa and San Mateo pay very low rates, $1.10 and $1 08 respectively, including the road tax outside corporate limits. It looks as if the larger the sum of money to be handled the greater the greed engendered by the handling of it. But there is always a day of reckoning in these matters when the people forget politics, friendship and all minor considerations, and vote neither "as they shot" nor yet "as they pray," but in the inverse ratio "as they pay." Where the Assessor keeps piling on the agony year after year, rolling up the figures by the millions, and yet the rate-makers follow, piling Ossa upon Pelion until property holders are taxed poor, there is sure to be an accounting asked for, and the overburdened taxpayer wants to know, you know, where all the ducats go to, and for whose benefit the expenditures are made. Salary rolls will be overhauled. The sleek steeds that feed at the public crib yet prance upon the public neck will be looked over. The unswept streets and horrid roads will rise in judgment on election day; and the lean and beggarly condition of the public funds and public benefits, as compared with the prosperous condition of the office holders, will be contrasted to some purpose by the poor devils who pinch and save the whole year round to pay all their savings into the city and county treasuries at the end of each year of scrimping.

THE marvelous energy which the railroad companies are putting forth to repair the damages done by the storm, encourage the hope that the trains will be running on time as usual in a few days. The Southern Pacific has a very hard task before it. Soledad cañon for a distance of ten or twelve miles is a scene of washout and wreckage. Notwithstanding the readjusting of that part of the road six years ago, taking it out of the bed of the creek, and raising it on the banks and running it through numerous tunnels, all this at a tremendous outlay, so severe and irresistible was the late freshet that even those parts of the road that were considered the best protected have given way, and new roadways will have to be built. But the company is equal to the emergency, and has forwarded one hundred carloads of road and bridge materials to the scene of action, with a very large force of men and construction trains. These will soon bring order out of chaos, and provisional tracks will be laid around the worst places, so as to ensure a resumption of travel at the earliest moment. In the meantime some of their best engineers are taking in the situation, and will be prepared to carry out substantial plans to make the road as invulnerable as possible against another such visitation as the cañon has just experienced. The Santa Fe Company is also putting forth the greatest energy to repair its roads. The worst place it has to deal with is in the Cajon Pass; but a large force is at work there, and the track will soon be again passable. One good effect of the late washouts and wreckage will be that the companies will now be enabled to determine the weak and danger-points on their roads, and strengthen them against another storm. But it may be many years before this section will again be visited by so long, so persistent and so deluging a rainfall as this winter's.

WILLIAM EWART GLADSTONE, the "Grand Old Man," the one that is after all perhaps destined to rank as the grandest of all of his time, yesterday celebrated his eightieth birthday. He no doubt attended the little parish church at Hawarden, and today he is likely to cut down a tree to prove his vigor is not decreased. He received congratulations from all over the world, from crowned Kings and humble peasants. He proves that the Hebrew Psalmist was wrong in the case of one of Adam's race, for he has reached four score years, yet his strength is not labor and sorrow. But then Gladstone is a modern Moses sent to lead the sons of Erin out of bondage, and like his Hebrew prototype, his eye is not dim nor is his natural force abated. He will live to see Home Rule secured to Ireland, and if the age of miracles were not passed one might well look to see the chariot of fire sent to take him to bliss.

DOM PEDRO'S GRIEF.

How the Ex-Empress Passed Away.

HER LAST PATHETIC WORDS.

The Deposed Monarch Alone With His Dead—Fears Entertained for His Condition.

[Associated Press Dispatches to the HERALD.

OPORTO, December 29.—Dom Pedro has received many telegrams of condolence on the death of his wife. Among them was one from Queen Victoria. When it became evident that the end was rapidly approaching, the ex-Empress was advised to summon a confessor. She replied: "Yes; but we must await the Emperor. He will give instructions."

Her last words were: "I regret that my children and grandchildren are not around me that I might bless them for the last time. Alas! Brazil, Brazil, that beautiful country! I cannot return there!"

When Dom Pedro arrived beside his dead wife, he knelt and kissed her forehead. He appeared unable to move and did not speak for twenty minutes. Then he said: "I have experienced the most bitter trial God could inflict upon me. Her faithful and affectionate companionship has sustained me for forty-six years God's will be done." Then noticing his wife's eyes still open, he lost command of himself and exclaimed: "Is it possible those dear, kind eyes will never again brighten when they see me!" Having closed the eyelids he reverently kissed them. He then asked to be alone and so remained for a long time, after which he became calm and asked the attendants to keep quiet until the Lisbon fetes were ended. The news had, however, already been sent everywhere.

Later in the evening Dom Pedro sent dispatches announcing the death of his wife to the various monarchs. The Brazilian Minister at Lisbon has notified the Provisional Government in Brazil of the death of the ex-Empress.

Today the body was embalmed and transferred to Chapelle Ardente. The interment will be in the Pantheon.

Dom Pedro rose early this morning and attended mass. He was greatly dejected and so weak that his doctors were obliged to support him. Much anxiety is felt for his condition.

MADRID, Dec. 29.—When Count and Countess D'Eu arrived here this morning, they were ignorant of the death of the Empress of Brazil, and there was a heart-rending scene at the hotel when the news of the death of her mother was broken to the Countess. Queen Christina came to the hotel to offer her condolences.

BRAZILIAN AFFAIRS.

The Imperial Family's Property Not Confiscated.

WASHINGTON, December 29.—The Brazilian Minister today received a cablegram from Barboza, Minister of Finance, regarding the statements repeatedly made that the Provisional Government of Brazil had confiscated the property belonging to the Emperor. It says: "The property belonging to the Imperial family has not been confiscated; on the contrary, the decree has guaranteed to allow the Imperial family the term of two years within which to dispose of its property."

The Brazilian Minister and Captain Mauritz, delegate to the Maritime Congress, who was present when an Associated Press reporter called to see the Minister, declared the firm belief that the republic was assured beyond question. The reports of trouble, they said, were all patched up in Lisbon by the enemies of the republic.

With regard to the report that Germans and other colonists had petitioned their Governments for protection against the decree of the Provisional Government, Valenti and Captain Mauritz said this was a mistaken understanding of the intention of the Government. The decree issued declared all foreign residents within the country at the time the republic was proclaimed to be citizens of Brazil, unless they preferred to continue their allegiance to their own country. There was nothing compulsory about it.

There seems to be a growing feeling among Brazilians here in support of the republic, and of opposition to the monarchy. This feeling apparently is due to a considerable extent to the supposed attempts at interference on the part of European Governments with Brazil's national affairs. Even those Brazilians who were formerly devoted to Dom Pedro, and for some time were not friendly to the new Government, are now strong adherents of the republic.

GERMAN CABLE.

Remission of an Editor's Fine Creates a Political Furore.

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—All society is now intensely interested in the coming fancy dress ball which the Emperor is to give at the Schloss, where every one of the guests must appear in Oriental costume.

An exceedingly interesting discussion is being carried on in private life everywhere, and not without much heat, of the queer proceedings of the Emperor in remitting the fine of 400 marks inflicted upon Dr. Dachlor, editor of the Staatsburger Zeitung, a conservative sheet which libeled Honsinger, the Socialist. It attacked him vigorously because he posed publicly as a Socialist and friend of the people, while in fact he is the head of a factory for making women's cloaks and similar garments, in which the "sweating" system is practiced at the expense of the many girls employed by him. Honsinger appealed to the courts. The editor was condemned and paid his fine in August. This fine was returned by the Emperor on Monday last. Such a use of the royal prerogative naturally surprises the people. Hitherto the exercise of royal clemency has been restricted to state cases. For the Emperor to thus interfere and stand between justice and an accused person in a mere case of private interests, is so plain a substitution of royal caprice for the law of the land, that everybody can understand it, and therefore everybody is profoundly moved by it. Journals cannot ignore the subject, but they are obliged to touch it with the greatest caution for fear of prosecution. Liberals of all shades discuss it in private, however. It is the universal theme. The Nationalists intensely regret the incident, as it plays into the hands of the progressionists and Socialists on the eve of election, with a clear demonstration of the gross abuse of power.

This incident will confirm the National Liberals in their inclination to vote as it stands the expulsion clause of the Socialist bill. This party now proposes as a compromise that it will vote for the expulsion clause if the application of that clause is limited to Socialists as proven to be engaged in conspiracy against the state, and if it shall not apply to the mere advocacy of socialism in the press or on the rostrum. It is improbable that Bismarck will accept this compromise, and an immediate political furore will take shape from this as a starting point. The liberal spirit of the National Liberal party, quickened by the Dachlor incident, will make it impossible for that party to yield on this expulsion clause. Without this party it can not be carried. Prince Bismarck will draw the bill and dissolve the Reichstag.

The exchange of views with the English Government regarding the decree of the Provisional Government of Brazil, concerning naturalization, has caused Prince Bismarck to abandon his intention to take any immediate action. Recent dispatches from Rio de Janeiro have influenced England, Germany and Italy to agree on ignoring the naturalization decree, and other irregular acts of the revolutionary leaders. The general conviction grows here that the new Government is merely a military movement, which is unstable and will be swept away even before the date to which it has postponed the elections.

BERLIN, December 29.—It is semi-officially explained that Emperor William's remission of the fine of Editor Dachlor, was the logical sequence of Emperor Frederick's press amnesty. This measure applies to pending as well as completed cases of the kind.

LA GRIPPE.

It Continues to Spread on Both Sides of the Water.

LONDON, December 29.—The epidemic of influenza continues in Paris and there are no signs of improvement. In Munich the disease is increasing. In Berlin it is accompanied by dengue fever, attended by rheumatism and a rise of temperature. Many of the officers of the Berlin garrison are affected, and about one-third of the military workmen at Spandau are ill with the disease.

MADRID, December, 29.—Influenza continues to spread and has appeared in most of the large towns of Spain.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, December 29.—Russian influenza is quite prevalent in Cleveland; all classes of people seem to be affected and some are compelled to take their to beds. No serious results are apprehended.

FAITHLESS TIPPO TIB.

How He Embarrassed the Emin Relief Expedition.

ZANZIBAR, December 29.—The Consular Court has heard the evidence of Stanley and Bonny in the Emin Relief Committee's action against Tippo Tib. They testified that Tippo Tib broke his contract with a view of obtaining all the stores and ammunition belonging to the expedition, and that Tippo Tib's nephew executed some natives who were trying to re-victual the expedition, thus causing a high rate of mortality among Stanley's followers. They also accuse Tippo Tib with providing 430 Manyemas in June, 1888, with the ulterior object of deserting Stanley. The court ordered Tippo Tib's agent to retain the £1,000 damages claimed by the relief committee.

A TOAST TO THE QUEEN.

Sexton Gives Her Majesty a Very Broad Hint.

LONDON, December 29.—A remark by Sexton at his farewell banquet in Dublin last night has caused some comment in political circles. In toasting the Queen, a necessary ceremony which is generally gone over with as little grace as possible by the nationalists on such occasions, Sexton said: "The nationalists will vote for royal grants as long as Her Majesty does not refuse to sign measures enacted by the people." This may be taken in a double sense—as an indication of loyalty to the crown, and as hinting at the fear that the Queen may some day abuse her prerogative by negativing the will of the people as expressed through parliamentary enactment favoring Irish self-rule.

INDIAN HOME RULE.

Bradlaugh Promises to Push Native Matters in Parliament.

BOMBAY, December 29.—The native congress at its final meeting confirmed a resolution previously adopted, and appointed a committee to press its views upon the English people. The Mahommedan delegates asked for time to consult their co-religionists on certain questions. It was decided to hold the next congress in Bengal, in 1890. The delegates separated with cheers for the Queen. Bradlaugh, who has attended the session, promised to bring up Indian matters in Parliament at the earliest possible moment.

GLADSTONE'S BIRTHDAY.

The Grand Old Man Passes His Eightieth Mile Post.

LONDON, December 29.—The 80th anniversary of Gladstone's birth absorbed so much attention as to make this the quietest Sabbath day of national remembrance. Telegrams and letters of congratulation poured into Hawarden from not only all quarters of England but literally from all parts of the world. All the members of the Gladstone family and its branches were gathered at Hawarden to meet and greet their eminent kinsman.

Coal Famine in Belgium.

LONDON, December 29.—There is a serious shortage of coal in Belgium, owing to the labor troubles in the mining regions. The manufacturing interests are beginning to suffer, and even the Government is unable to obtain its usual supply of fuel. The singular spectacle is likely to be witnessed of the Government of a coal producing country sending abroad for its coal supply.

The Unhappy Czar.

ST. PETERSBURG, December 29—The Czar is again reported indisposed. Many army officers suspected of revolutionary sympathies have been arrested. General Vannooski, Minister of War, proposes that nobles only should be allowed to become army officers, but the Czar refuses to entertain the suggestion.

Meeting the Arabs.

ZANZIBAR, December 29.—Major Wissman, with a force of men and several steamers, has gone to meet an attack of 6,000 Arabs on the Pangani. The Arabs, who are led by Bemanaheri, attacked Gorman's detachment two days ago, wounding the officer and killing several men.

The Comptoir des Comptes.

PARIS, Dec. 29.—A meeting of the old Comptoir des Comptes' shareholders, held yesterday, accepted a compromise whereby the directors offer them 24.000,000 francs. Chairman Hentsch's offer of 1,500,000 francs was rejected.

A FAMILY CREMATED.

Eleven Persons Consumed in the Flames.

HORROR STRICKEN SPECTATORS

The Cries of the Victims Were Heartrending, But No Aid Could Reach Them.

[Associated Press Dispatches to the HERALD.]

DETROIT, Mich., December 29.—The Tribune's special from Hancock, Mich., says: A calamity not surpassed in the annals of the country occurred at 3 o'clock this morning at Hurontown. A family named Gross, consisting of the parents and eight children, with a visitor, were consumed in a burning dwelling. Theodore Gross and wife returned from a dance near by at 2 o'clock. At 2:30 their son, Theodore, Jr., returned from the Huron stamp mills, where he is employed. He went into the house and to bed. Shortly after he was awakened by his brother Nicholas, who heard screams coming from an adjoining room, occupied by their sisters and three little brothers. They ran to the door and found the room a mass of flames. Smoke and fire were ascending the stairway, and the boys escaped by jumping through a window. They reached the ground seriously cut by glass and but scantily clad. One attempted to enter the house on the ground floor, where his father, mother and two children slept, but was driven back by the flames that enveloped the building. It was impossible for the spectators who had quickly gathered to save the inmates. They were compelled to stand by and hear their agonizing cries.

In the course of three hours a searching party went over the ruins and discovered the charred remains of eleven bodies, distinguishable only by the size of the bodies. They were gathered in a sleigh box and deposited in the public hall. The victims were: Theodore Gross, aged 57; his wife, aged 47; Catherine, John, Toney, Mary, Lizzie, Joseph, Michael, Lenie, all the children of Mr. and Mrs. Gross, and Lena Erbst, of Lake Linden, a guest. The ages of the young people range from 2 to 22 years.

There is no reliable information as to how the fire started. Theodore Gross, Jr. says it might have originated from a lamp that he supposed to be extinguished before he went to bed. There are rumors that the dreadful accident occurred through the carelessness of the parents, who are alleged to have returned home intoxicated from the dance.

AN ECCENTRIC SPOUSE.

Judge Barrett's Wife in a Foreign Insane Asylum.

NEW YORK, December 29.—A cablegram was printed this morning to the effect that the wife of Judge Barrett, of the New York Supreme Court, had been confined in an insane asylum at Dresden, by order of her husband, and that she claimed to be sane. Judge Barrett, upon being shown the dispatch, said the facts were these: He married his wife twenty years ago; some years afterwards she began to show mental peculiarities. He then learned for the first time that insanity was hereditary in her family. Her mother died of softening of the brain. Her father, Mr. Fairfield, was known as "The Crazy Poet." Her grandfather died of insanity. Her sister had been for twenty-five years in the Georgetown insane asylum. Both her brothers died insane.

Mrs. Barrett's eccentric and insane actions caused the husband much trouble for a number of years. Her chief delusion was that people were trying to poison her. She finally went to Europe to escape the poisoners. Her condition has steadily grown worse. The Judge hesitated long as to what duty required him to do. Finally Mrs. Barrett's actions attracted the attention of the Dresden authorities and United States Consul Mahon. Upon the advice of physicians it was deemed best to send the lady to a retreat for the insane, where she is receiving the best of care. Judge Barrett has always tried to induce his wife to return and live with him, but she would not do so, and seemed happy only when flitting from place to place in Uurope. She had tried to get a divorce, one of her delusions taking the shape of baseless jealousy, but the Judge would not consent to divorce, regarding it as his duty to her and his daughter to care for her and his wife as long as she lived.

MISHAPS ON THE RAIL.

Passengers Bruised and Shaken Up at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 29.—Eight persons were seriously bruised and shaken up by the derailing of a passenger car on the Philadelphia and Reading road in this city last night. The train was moving very slowly when the car was derailed and thrown on its side. The engineer soon stopped the train.

ANOTHER WRECK ON THE C. & O.

WHEELING, Va., Dec. 29.—Another wreck occurred today on the Chesapeake and Ohio road at Fort Gay. Green Brier county. A freight train was derailed; Fireman Leighton was killed and Engineer Murray seriously injured.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

A Reformer Descants on the Merits of the Movement.

BUFFALO, N. Y., December 29.—Sherman S. Rogers, a local member of the committee of five appointed recently by the National Civil Service Reform League to examine into the management of the Federal Civil Service, today says: "It was hardly contemplated that any important action would be taken by the committee until the first part of the coming year. The general scheme of the movement," he continued, "is for the purpose of furnishing information of every kind tending to show the people the beneficial character of Civil Service Reform. We will certainly find some things which need correction, and expect to find much to attest the fact that Civil Service Reform is highly beneficial in its nature to the public at large. As soon as the people understand this, it is our expectation that they will not allow the movement to be crippled for means to support its action, but will provide for it the sinews of war."

THE WINTER SET IN.

A Blizzard in the Northwest and a Norther in Texas.

ST. PAUL, December 29.—Winter weather is reported as having set in generally throughout the Northwest. A heavy snow has fallen over a wide area and trains are delayed at many points. The gentle snowfall which reached the twin cities yesterday evening, strengthened into a gale of blizzard persuasion later, and raged furiously until morning. Huron, S., D. reports the nearest approach to a blizzard since '87; snow has drifted badly; all trains were held there last night and to-day, but will go out tomorrow morning.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., December 29.—The first genuine norther of the season made itself felt this morning, and the mercury has fallen twenty-seven degrees in six hours.

THE DEATH ROLL.

A Once Lady of the White House Passes Away.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., December 29.—Mrs. Robert Tyler died this morning, aged 74. Mrs. Tyler was the daughter of the celebrated tragedian, Thomas Cooper, and Mary Fairlie, a noted belle of New York. In 1840 she married Robert Tyler, eldest son of President Tyler, and upon the special request of the President and his wife, who was an invalid, she presided as the "Lady of the White House" during the first three years of President Tyler's administration.

A HARVARD PROFESSOR DIES OF LA GRIPPE.

BOSTON, December 29.—George W. Sawin, an instructor in mathematics at Harvard college, died this morning at the Massachusetts General Hospital, aged 29 years. He was seized with an acute attack of peritonitis, Tuesday, and on Wednesday was taken down with la grippe.

AN ASSASSIN'S VICTIM.

ATLANTA, Ga., December 29.—James F. Woodward, a prominent business man, died this evening. Thursday night Woodward was walking out Marietta street, when somebody stepped in front of him, pushed a pistol to his breast and fired. Woodward walked to his sister's house, a mile or more away, and told the story. He treated the matter lightly and thought he would get well, but a relapse today brought on death.

METCALF'S VICTIM.

The Lady Whom He Swindled Committed Suicide.

LAWRENCE, Mass., December 29.—Today the body of Miss Sarah Nichols was found frozen in the ice on the Merrimac river. Miss Nichols disappeared from Lowell on Christmas Eve. She resided in Belvedere and was recently swindled out of $1,000 by Charles Metcalf, to whom she had at one time been engaged. This caused despondency and led to her suicide.

Metcalf came to Lawrence from California, where he claimed to be well connected. After becoming engaged to Miss Nichols he induced her to entrust him with her money to invest in California mining stocks. It soon became apparent that he was a swindler, and last week he was arrested and placed in jail.

HOOSIER SPORTS.

Two Local Bruisers Meet in the Prize Ring.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., December 29.—A prize fight occurred near here this morning between Richard Keating, a pugilist of some note in this section, and Edward Corey, of Crawfordsville, a novice. The men were evenly matched, and weighed in at about 185 each. Keating had trained but little and was over-confident. Corey played a very cautious game in the first of the fight, and although receiving several heavy blows, managed to inflict severe punishment on his opponent, and soon got the upper hand. In the fifteenth round Keating was knocked down three times. Cautious sparring followed. In the twenty-third round Keating touched Corey lightly on the nose with his left and swung his right just below Corey's ear. The blow was decisive and Corey, the game novice, was knocked out.

TWO NARROW ESCAPES.

An Indiana Jailbird's Life Twice in Peril.

BRAZIL, Ind., December 29.—James Dahlgren, who was jailed here a few days ago on the charge of forgery, had a narrow escape from death yesterday. It was believed that he was the man who assaulted Miss Clara Warner several weeks ago, and yesterday her father brought her to the jail to see. She promptly identified Dahlgren as the miscreant, and her angry father drew a revolver and would have shot him had it not been for the Sheriff's interference. The story got abroad in town, and last night an angry mob gathered with the purpose of lynching the brute. The Sheriff got wind of their intention, however, and placed such a guard at the jail that the mob gave up the scheme.

Shot Dead in Bed.

BOSCOBEL, Wis., December 29.—Between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning Jerry O'Neil and wife were shot while in bed by an unknown assassin at Mt. Sterling. Their two daughters in an adjoining room were awakened by the shots, but when they reached the bedside of their parents they were dead. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the crime, as the O'Neils, who are well-to-do farmers, are not known to have had any enemies.

Robert Garrett's Condition.

BALTIMORE, December 29.—Mr. Robert Garrett is in very poor health. At times he is very much depressed and occasionally becomes very much excited. He is still at his country home, Uplands, near Catonsville. His friends are not encouraged by reports from his physicians, especially as he has been unwell off and on for more than two years.

The Week's Clearances.

BOSTON, December 29.—A table compiled from dispatches from the managers of the leading clearing houses of the United States, shows that the total gross exchanges for the week ended December 29, 1889, were $947,988,249, an increase of 2.1 per cent. as compared with the corresponding week of last year.

Lynching Avoided.

McFALL, Mo., December 29.—The reports of the attempt that was to have been made last night to lynch Press Howard, the murderer of Fall, were greatly exaggerated. There was some talk during the day of an attempt to lynch Howard, but better counsel prevailed.

Senatorial Investigators.

NEW YORK, December 29.—Two special Senate committees arrived here tonight and will begin hearings this week. One has been appointed to look into our trade with Canada, the other will examine witnesses regarding the exportation and consumption of beef.

Assigned.

PHILADELPHIA, December 29.—Alexander Beck & Son, carpet manufacturers, made an assignment yesterday for the benefit of their creditors. Liabilities, $130,000; assets, $100,000.

No Fears of Retaliation.

CHARLESTON, S. C., December 29.—There are no new developments in the Barnwell lynching. The town has no fears of negro retaliation.

DIDN'T UNDERSTAND GAS

The Sad Fate of a Mother and Two Daughters.

SUFFOCATED IN THEIR SLEEP.

They Were a Ventura County Homesteader's Loved Ones—No One to Blame.

[Associated Press Dispatches to the HERALD.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 29.—In the Eureka hotel, this morning, Mrs. Jane Erwin and her two daughters, Mary and Bessie, aged 16 and 12, respectively, were found dead in their bed, having been asphyxiated by gas. Mrs. Erwin and her family, including two daughters and two sons, arrived in Oakland last night, from Cold Camp, Benton county, Missouri, and took rooms in the Eureka hotel. Mrs. Erwin and her two daughters were assigned to the same room, and not being accustomed to the use of gas, they asked the hotel clerk to show them how to turn it off. All retired in the same bed about 11 o'clock. In the morning the sons went down to breakfast and after waiting some time for their mother and sisters, they went to their room and found the three lying dead. An examination of the stop cock on the gas burner revealed the fact that it had been turned but half way off. The Coroner took charge of the bodies and will hold an inquest tomorrow. Mrs. Erwin's husband, who is now living near Santa Paula, Ventura county, California, was immediately notified. Erwin has been in this State about six months and had just rented a farm in Ventura county, to which place his family were en route to join him.

Andrew Ruedy, one of the proprietors of the hotel, was the one who showed the Erwin family to their rooms. He makes the following statement: "I showed Mrs. Erwin and the two girls to room 5, on the first floor, and lit the gas at one burner. Then I took the two boys to room 51, on the floor above. I asked the boys if they knew how to put out gas, and when they said they did not, I showed them. Then I went down at once and showed Mrs. Erwin how to turn the key and explained the danger to her. She, too, said she knew nothing about it until I explained it to her. I knew nothing of the death of the mother and the girls until I was informed by my partner this morning. No one appears to have noticed the odor of gas escaping in the hall."

Dr. Crowley and Coroner Evers state that when they reached the room the gas was shut off, and the statement of the young man, George, that he found the key turned partially around when he entered the room, and shut it tight himself, is thought to be correct. When their death was discovered the mother was found on the floor in front of the bed, in a position to indicate that she had felt the suffocating gas, and getting out of bed had made a desperate effort to reach the door, but found herself too weak and expired at the threshold. The two girls were lying in the bed, which evidently had been occupied by all three. Their features were not distorted, and their deaths apparently had been painless.

SENSATIONAL SUICIDE.

A Man Cuts His Throat in a Catholic Church.

SAN MATEO, Cal., December 29.—James Tigart, a well dressed and apparently wealthy man, supposed to be from San Francisco, created an excitement in the Catholic church tonight by committing suicide. He arrived on the train from San Jose this afternoon, and rushing to Father Callaghan threw himself on his knees crying: "Save me! Save me! I'm going to die! Evil spirits are after me!" The priest calmed him and directed him to a hotel. Tigart appeared again at the evening service and was very devoted. At the close he calmly rose, drew a penknife and cut his throat three times. He died in five minutes without speaking a word. It is thought his mind was affected.

THE BROWNS WON.

A Nice Game of Ball Between Boston and St. Louis.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 29.—The St. Louis Browns and the Bostons crossed bats at the Haight-street grounds this afternoon, and furnished some 6,000 spectators with what all conceded to be one of the best exhibitions of baseball playing seen on the California League diamond for the past two years. The game, although only an exhibition contest, was hotly contested throughout, and both teams played hard to win. The St. Louis boys, however, carried off the honors, by scoring four runs to their opponents' none.

A New Baseball League.

SACRAMENTO, December 29.—Arrangements are being made to form an amateur baseball league, which will be known as the Northern California League. A schedule will be arranged and the neighboring towns of Willows, Woodland and Colusa will be represented. "Peek-a-boo Veach stated today that he had signed with the Cleveland league team for next season, and that his salary for the season will be $2,200.

AN ASSASIN'S PLOT.

Bad Marksmanship Made His Plans Miscarry.

NEW YORK, December 29.—Early this morning the gas in the sleeping room of Frederick Stedifer, proprietor of a bakery at 301 Floyd street, Brooklyn, was extinguished, and Stedifer went down to the cellar to find out the cause. He saw a man there who fired a shot at him. The bullet wounded him in the neck, partially dazing him, when the burglar effected his escape. This afternoon the police arrested Albert Maiser, a former employee of Stedifer, who confessed that it was he who did the shooting. He said he had hidden himself in the cellar and turned off the gas, thinking Stedifer would come down to see what was the matter, when Maiser would shoot him. If Stedifer had failed to come down, he intended to turn the gas up again and suffocate the family. Maiser acknowledged that he entertained a bitter hatred against Stedifer, on account of a derogatory statement he had made against him while in his employ.

THE SOUTH'S DISGRACE:

A Southern Paper's View of the Barnwell Lynching.

AUGUSTA, Ga., December 29.—The Chronicle referring to the lynching of the negroes at Barnwell, S. C., says: The white men who mob and shoot negroes, accused of crime, violate the laws of God and their country. They are guilty of murder, and, however revolting the crime supposed to have been committed by those upon whom their vengeance is wreaked, the men who take the law in their own hands, who usurp the places of judge and jury, are conspirators against the peace and integrity of the State, and enemies to the most sacred rights and only safeguard of the liberties of the people. The shooting of negroes, whether guilty or not, by bands of lawless white men, is brutal. It is a disgrace to our civilization and a scandal and shame to any community that tolerates or perpetrates such acts of lawlessness and inhumanity.

BOILED TO DEATH.

The Horrible Fate of a Paralytic Patient.

INDIANAPOLIS, December 29.—A Sentinel special from Kokomo, Ind., says: A horrible crime occurred here last night which created great excitement. John Clark, a well to-do farmer, living near town, who was afflicted with paralysis, had been for some months taking baths at Tykle's bath room. Yesterday evening Tykle put him into the bath tub at 8 o'clock, and left him to himself while he was engaged in revelry with some companions. Tykle finally went to bed and forgot his patient, whom he had left in the hot bath with the gas burning under the tub. He found him dead with the skin all peeled off his body, this morning, as well as portions of the flesh. He was literally boiled to death, being powerless to help himself out of his awful situation. He has a family of children and is about seventy years old. Tykle is in jail awaiting the result of the Coroner's inquest, which will be held on Monday.

The Monte Piedad Banking Scheme.

CITY OF MEXICO, December 29.—After a thorough investigation of the plans and resources of the Monte Piedad banking scheme concessionaires, it is learned that they can count on sufficient funds to carry out their project. It is stated that the recent rumors that the concessionaires' efforts had ended in a fiasco, were started by enemies of the enterprise.

Word from Dr. Peters.

BERLIN, December 29.—Dr. Peters, the African explorer, in a letter dated Kenie, October 8th, recently received by his brother, after stating that he had killed a native chieftain, says he had defeated the Gallos and captured their harvest. He expresses fear of conflicts with the Somalis.

The San Salvador Revolt.

CITY OF MEXICO, December 29.—Telegrams from the Republic of San Salvador received today state that the revolutionists in the Department of Cuscatlan are retreating before the Government troops sent against them, and the revolution is of no importance.

A Collision on the Clyde.

LONDON, December 29.—During a fog on the river Clyde the steamer Ovington came into collision with the steamer Queen Victoria, and the former sank. Five persons were drowned.

Arrived at New York.

NEW YORK, December 29.—State of Nevada, Glasgow.

NEW YORK, December 29.—Etruria, Liverpool.

A Melee at a Ball.

About 1:30 o'clock this morning a free fight occurred at No. 150 South Main street among a number of the guests at a German society dance. Officer Sanchez was dispatched from the police station to quell the disturbance. The row began between two Germans, one of whom stepped accidentally upon the other's toes while crowding to the lunch table at the end of the hall, and after a few blows had been struck between them three friends took up the quarrel and a fight occurred between the two factions. There were no arrests, the affair being all over before the officer arrived.

Dyspepsia

Makes many lives miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sick headache, heartburn, sour stomach, mental depression, etc., are caused by this very common and increasing disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla tones the stomach, creates an appetite, promotes digestion, relieves headache, clears the mind, and cures dyspepsia.

In a Terrible Condition.

"I owe my life to Hood's Sarsaparilla. For two years I was in a terrible condition with dyspepsia. I could eat nothing but soda crackers, and my weight fell from 170 to 138 pounds. Hood's Sarsaparilla helped me at once, and after using 3 bottles I was entirely cured. I have gained my usual weight, 170 pounds, and have had excellent health ever since." T. J. WILCOX, 20-26 1st South Street, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Headache—Hot Flashes.

"I had headache, hot flashes, soreness and swelling across my body, pain in my right side, with frequent vomiting. I used Hood's Sarsaparilla with the best results. I am in better health than for four years. Hood's Sarsaparilla is safe, reliable, and sure." J. C. WILLSON, Auburn, Cal.

OVER THE LINES.

A Sunday Tour of Observation.

THE EFFECTS OF THE RAINS.

What Can be Seen from a Cable Car—The Damage Hardly Noticeable.

A HERALD reporter, anxious to see how much the effects of the recent storm were noticeable near the ordinary course of travel, took a trip yesterday over the various lines under the control of the Los Angeles Cable Company, noticing carefully the evidences of the severe rainstorm which prevailed up to Thursday last.

Turning toward Boyle Heights, First street presented an aspect but little different from what it does after a short rain. The paved portions of the street were dry and in good condition. Looking south on Los Angeles and San Pedro streets, they seemed like pretty poor places for teams, with their entire width filled with black mud. Alameda street looked as dry and innocent as if it had not been a veritable river on Tuesday night. Arrived at the bridge over the river, the lack of life at the Santa Fe depot was very noticeable. Just south of the bridge occurs a long break in the levee, while further down could be seen the two iron bridges at Seventh and Ninth streets, looking sad and ionesome with their eastern approaches entirely gone. To the north, a few loose timbers at the end of the Aliso bridge are all that indicate the cave-in which occurred there, while the old reliable-covered bridge looks only the better for the thorough washing it received.

First street beyond the bridge seems little the worse for the rain. Clean gutters and dry water-courses through the unoccupied land below show that much water flowed there, but the street itself is not injured. The Heights seem not to have gotten rid of their superflous water with that rapidity of which the residents boast. The streets were all very muddy and many large puddles were observable in every depression. At the power house the machinery was all shining and in good order, but the floors bore evidences of recent soaking, and the boiler room had a well-defined water mark on its walls indicating the height to which the flood rose on Christmas morning.

Beyond the power houses the corner of Breed street is badly washed, leaving the wooden curbing standing unsupported. Soto and Matthews streets are deeply gullied and cut up. From the top of the hill a little beyond Mott street a view was obtainable that is worth much to see. The bright green of the open ground, dotted with beautiful residences, seemed to stretch away to where the foothills rise, shaded from brilliant green to dark green and black, while beyond, sharply defined against the unclouded blue sky, were the higher mountain tops, dazzlingly white with their caps of snow.

A house near Saratoga street has the rain to blame for the loss of a row of beautiful pepper trees. The loss did not prey on the minds of the children apparently, for a number of boys were observed here trying to persuade a youthful calf to go through a gate, the calf resisting like the incarnation of obstinacy, while the boys shouted with laughter and pulled at every place they could get a hold of the animal. The cemetery, looking peculiarly bright and attractive for so suggestive a place, brought the car to the end of its journey in this direction.

Next, after returning to town, the Grand-avenue line was taken. With the exception of considerable mud on Seventh street and a deep hole washed out under a fence at the corner of Olive street, this line presented little that is worthy of special mention. The power house gives little evidence of the amount of water which it contained on Christmas morning. The avenue shows that there was considerable water there recently, but it has all run off and left the roadway and sidewalks in good condition.

The blue line, out Washington street, showed only a bad place for teams on account of mud, and a street car track with the sand all washed from between the ties, but the beautiful grounds of the handsome residences out that way look so much better for the rain that the trifling damage done to the driving sinks still further into insignificance.

The Ninth and Seventh-street lines exhibited the greatest damage due to the rains, which consisted mostly in gullied streets, and sidewalks filled with pits and pools.

Then, following the crowd the reporter went out over the Downey-avenue line to the river. San Fernando street is always muddy for two or three weeks after a rain, and is no worse than usual. At the Downey-avenue bridge the crowd alighted and hurried off to watch the men at work on the railroad bridges. They could be seen from the bridge working like bees on the temporary structure at the Santa Fe bridge—a structure that reminded the sightseer of the days when he, as a child, built pig pens out of the kindling wood. From here, too, could be seen the sagging floor of the Buena Vista-street bridge, where two of the iron supporting pillars were broken by the timbers of the Santa Fé railroad bridge early Christmas morning, as well as the crooked cement pier further out, which everyone thought would take an earthquake to dislodge. The two breaks in the levee on the east side of the river, by the Glendale depot, are also visible, as well as the deep holes which the water gouged in the embankment back of each break. Looking south, the larger break in the East Side levee, where the embankment is entirely gone behind it, between Downey avenue and Kuhrts street, comes to view. Beyond the Kuhrts-street bridge another cluster of busily working men are visible, with the almost completed temporary bridge for the Southern Pacific rapidly taking shape beneath their hands.

The sight seers stick to the river, and truly they were right, for East Los Angeles, as far as it can be seen near the car lines, suffered but little from the storm.

The last trip was over the Kuhrts-street line, and aside from a few small washouts, this street had recovered from the effects of the rain much quicker than it ever did previous to the construction of the storm drains. Returning from the last trip the reporter came to the conclusion that Los Angeles may be pretty disagreeable during the rain, an unpleasant place during a flood, perhaps—about once in five years—but outside of paradise it will do very well for a permanent place of residence.

WHY SUFFER WITH RHEUMATISM? when the chances are nine in ten that a course of mud baths at Arrowhead Springs will work a cure.

Do Not Delay—Every day of procrastination may put off the hour of release from pain by weeks and months.

The Cost is trifling when compared with doctor's fees, druggists' bills and damage to business.

Rheumatism rarely yields to medicines. The treatment by mineral waters is the most rational and effective known.

The Arrowhead Hot Springs are the finest mineral waters in Southern California, and the Arrowhead Hotel is the best kept sanitarium. Take the morning train for San Bernardino, where an Arrowhead stage meets it at the depot; or for descriptive circulars, terms and references write to WM. M. TISDALE, Arrowhead Springs, Calif d1 1m

THE RAYMOND, EAST PASADENA,

Among the Orange Groves of the beautiful San Gabriel Valley, eight miles from Los Angeles,

C. H. MERRILL, Manager (during the summer season manager of the Crawford House, White Mountains, N. H.)

If you cannot go out to The Raymond and spend a day, a week, a month, or the whole season, then go out and stay a few hours. It is well worth your while to see the magnificent view from its piazzas; and that view alone will well repay you, although there are many other interesting features—especially the grand display of flowers in the hotel grounds, which are now under the charge of Mr. C. H. Hovey, the celebrated landscape gardener, formerly of Hovey's Nurseries, Cambridge, Mass. Tourists visiting Los Angeles should make a trip to The Raymond, even if their stay there must necessarily be brief. There are frequent trains between Los Angeles and The Raymond by several lines of railroad. The orchestra consists of four soloists, who render the choicest of music twice each day.

A very complete livery is connected with the hotel, and it is an excellent starting-point for a drive through the San Gabriel valley, in which are situated the San Gabriel Mission church, Rose's vinery, Lucky Baldwin's stock farm, the Sierra Madre Villa, and many other places of interest.

Full particulars regarding board and other matters can be obtained by addressing C. H. Merrill, Manager of The Raymond, East Pasadena, California.

SUMMONS.

No. 11,877.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles.

C. B. Boyes and C. E. Crowley, partners doing business under the firm name of Boyes & Crowley Plaintiffs, vs. D. A. Bascom J. C. Delvy and M. J. Hathaway, Defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles, and the complaint filed in said County of Los Angeles in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to D. A. Bascom, J. C. Delvy and M. J. Hathaway, defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service after the service on you of this summons if served within this county; or if served elsewhere, within thirty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to foreclose the lien against lot 15, block 9, Los Angeles Improvement Company's subdivision in the city of Los Angeles, county and State aforesaid, for grading Alabama street in front thereof. The amount claimed is $235.26, with interest, attorneys' fees, and cost of suit. Reference is had to complaint for particulars.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said plaintiff will cause your default to be entered and will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles, this 23d day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine.

Special Bulletin.

OFFICE OF THE OBSERVER, LOS ANGELES, Cal., December 29, 1889, 10 a. m. A special telegram received from the Chief Signal Office states that a "cold wave" is indicated for Kansas and Nebraska The temperature will fall 30 to 40 degs. by 8 a. m. December 30th.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Harrington, of Colusa, are visitors in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Williams, of El Monte, visited the city yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Bigelow, of Chicago, are visitors to Los Angeles.

H. M. and Dore Scudder, of Pasadena, came over to Los Angeles yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Smith, of Norwalk, Ohio, are in Southern California for the winter.

J. Q. Adamson, of Adamson & Co., wholesale builders, is tied up at Barstow by the washouts.

Miss Kittie Pierce, of Glendale, is spending the holidays with friends in East Los Angeles.

W. Hadley and T. E. Newlin, of Whittier, came in to Los Angeles yesterday and will return today.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Stone, Mrs. Sargent, G. Stone and Mrs. Sanborn, of Boston, are visiting the city.

G. J. Bower is spending the holidays with his family at the Cable Villa. He will return in a few days to Antelope valley.

L. M. Brown is entertaining his sister, Mrs. Laura Sanders, who has come here with her three boys from Illinois to spend the winter.

J. Edgar Wheat is down from Rosmond, Antelope valley, for the holidays. He reports a very large acreage being sown to grain this year.

J. H. Partridge is home for the holidays, but will return in a few days to Hesperia, where he says the country is decked with flowers and verdure.

J. S. Bower and family, from Pennsylvania, is visiting Dr. Shoemaker. Mr. Bower is here on account of his wife's health, and will soon go to house-keeping.

George W. McGae, of Indianapolis, Ind., is in the city and although he has experienced some of our unpleasant weather since his arrival, he is greatly pleased with Los Angeles.

Rev. Mr. Crawford is at San Jacinto and is likely to stay there for several days yet. It was on the programme for him to eat Christmas dinner with his family at the Glenwood, but the elements prevented.

Farling, Colton; A. L. O'Neill, New York; E. A. Harrington and wife, Colusa, Cal; W. Hadley and T. E. Newlin, Whittier; M. R. Williams and wife, Elmonte; J. Breeden, San Diego; S. B. Smith and wife, Norwalk, Ohio; D. E. Bigelow and wife, Chicago, are at the Hollenbeck.

NEWS NOTES.

An unusually large number of petitions in relation to repairs of streets injured by the rains will come up before the Council today.

The Signal Service reports a cold wave in Kansas and Nebraska today. It expects the thermometer to fall 30 to 40 degrees this morning.

It is the intention of the managers of the base ball park to re-open on New Year's Day, and every effort is being made to get the grounds in order.

The City Council will meet this morning at 10 o'clock. There are very few important matters to be taken up outside of the reports of the committees.

The Young Americas, recently organized, played their first game at Agricultural Park grounds with the Jockeys. The game was hotly contested, and at the end of the seventh inning the Jockeys threw up the sponge, leaving the Young Americas monarchs of the diamond. Score, 11 to 1. Who's next.

R. D. List, Notary Public. Legal papers are fully drawn. 18 S. Spring. Depositions taken.

Actresses and Corsets.

I find that very few actresses wear corsets upon the stage. Fanny Davenport is guiltless of them, as one can easily discover when seeing her in Tosca. Modjeska wears an invention of her own—a sort of cuirass of buckskin—that comes up to the armpits and down over the hips. Cora Potter never wore a corset, and Miss Eastlake told me she has never had one on. She wears instead a whaleboned waist. Jessie Millard wears a bandage below the belt. Bernhardt wears a flannel waist, not for support, but for comfort. This is all very well for women with perfect figures, but who would wish to see our fat friends going about without stays? However, there are plenty of women to buy corsets and this article of femenine attire grows more beautiful and expensive. What do you say to white brocaded satin corsets, bordered with real ostrich feather trimmings, which sell for $40 apiece? Pink is a favorite color just now and these rose-hued corsets are certainly lovely to look at and cost a pretty penny. Plain green satin is also much in vogue. Black is a bit passé, though many ladies will cling to black corsets and underwear for the sake of contrast.

A Flattering Endorsement.

The judges on musical instruments at the Centennial Exhibition, Philadelphia, 1876, after severe tests of the pianos of more than forty different makers from all parts of the world recognized the merits of the Sohmer pianos, and wrote a flattering report on them, recommending for them the highest reward in their power to grant—a Medal of Merit and Diploma of Honor, which were unanimously decreed by the United States Centennial Commission.

The Speaker's Wife.

Mrs. Reed, though not fond of mingling in official society, is better equipped for the duties of Speaker's wife than almost any of the other candidates' wives. She is of low stature, comely and plump of figure, with wavy dark-brown hair growing low on her forehead, and ingenuous, laughing eyes. She looks scarcely 34, and has but one child, a daughter of 13, whose delicate health through recent years has formed a cogent reason for the mother's persistent declination of the most flattering invitations. But she is fluent and agreeable in conversation in her own parlors, tasteful in dress, and will preside with dignity and popularity at the Wednesday receptions of the Speaker's wife, which rank in importance with those of the foremost Cabinet ladies.—[Washington letter.

MRS. C. D. STUART.

Mrs. C. D. Stuart, of 400 Hayes St., writes, "I have for years had spells of indigestion and dispepsia, and tried nearly everything. Finally I took a well known Sarsaparilla. It caused pimples to break out on my face without helping me. Hearing that Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla did not contain mineral, and might act differently, I sent for it. The pimples disappeared immediately, and I had no more returns of the old spells." Although the above was written a year ago, Mrs. Stuart now attests the permanency of its effects. Says she takes an occassional dose to suppress a symptom of return and that she has perfect command over her old trouble.

A Correction.

The item in the last Monday's Times regarding the legless singer, who plays with her sister the hand organ in the streets, appears to have been founded upon a misrepresentation of facts. The woman's misfortune is too real. She is poor also, and testifies that the only means of subsistence she has is by chanting the carols of La Belle France, and selling its repertory of songs.

Head, Throat and Lungs

Successfully treated by

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M.D.

M. C. P. S. O.,

BY HIS COMPOUND OXYGEN

AND OTHER

MEDICATED INHALATIONS.

Catarrh, Bronchitis and Consumption, etc., are now conceded to originate from living germs or parasites, millions of which exist in diseased surfaces.

Our Hot Medicated Inhalations kill and destroy these germs when nothing else can reach them, while our COMPOUND OXYGEN antagonizes and thoroughly removes every poison of the system from the Blood, no matter from what cause it exists or how long it has continued, and is efficacious in the cure of Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Nervous Prostration, Insomnia and Dyspepsia, etc , together with any poisoned condition of the blood.

In all cases of Catarrh and other diseases of the Respiratory Organs, where the system suffers from the deleterious effects of scrofula or other vitiated condition of the blood local treatment is invariably conjoined with constitutional remedies.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedies at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business whatever.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless, unless the disease has advanced to the chest and both lungs are seriously involved. The inhalations aid us in dissolving the mucus and in connecting and healing the cavities, which nothing else can do with the same success.

The very best of references from those already cured.

Those who desire to consult me in regard to their cases had better call at the office for an examination, but if impossible to visit the office personally can write for list of questions and circular, both of which will be sent free of charge. Address

IMPORTANT
—AND—
Worth : Investigation.

We are making suits to order of the fine Huddersfield Worsteds for $25 which are worth $40. As the sale of these fine worsteds during the past three weeks has proved such an immense success in San Francisco, we concluded to give the benefit to the public of Los Angeles. We have purchased $40,000 worth of these Huddersfield worsteds and have added a large line of Kerseys and Meltons for overcoats made to order, with fine silk linings, for $25 to $30, which would cost elsewhere at least from $40 to $60. We have received from the mill over 40 pieces of fine Trouserings, which we bought at an immense reduction, and we are now prepared to give our customers and the public the benefit. These are fine ALL WOOL goods at prices never before known in Los Angeles. Please call and examine the goods and be convinced of the bargains now offered for the holidays.
